The Social Unconscious in Persons, Groups, and Societies 2018-03-29 in 2004 a conference was held at king s college london to commemorate the centenary of the birth of charles boxer the theme of the conference was the development of the culturally mixed portuguese societies in asia africa and america which reflected boxer s own interest in the social history of portugal s overseas empire although the conference papers were published by bristol university this volume is long out of print and the outstanding quality of many of the contributions has made it necessary for this collection to be republished portuguese overseas expansion over a period of five centuries led to the formation of many mixed or creole communities which drew culturally not only on portugal but also on indigenous societies this cross cultural interaction gave rise to a creole portuguese identity that in many cases outlasted the formal empire itself reflecting upon the main tenets of boxer s work this collection provides a broad geographical perspective upon areas of portuguese presence in guinea cape verde angola são tomé brazil and goa the chapters cover a wide range of social strata including plantation slave and maroon communities private settler traders and pirates indigenous trade diasporas and luso african luso brazilian and afro brazilian groups as well as the formation of creole elites against the background of shifting racial gender ethnic linguistic and religious boundaries as such this collection represents an exercise in subaltern history which shows that the informal social relations were often more important in the long term than the formal structures of empire

Societies in Making IIs 89 2010-10-19 where will muslim societies be tomorrow the world is increasingly and constantly changing making it hard to keep up this makes the state much more dire and troublesome for those already marginalised particularly muslim societies normal is no longer capable of upholding the promise of tomorrow s certainty these are postnormal times in this storm of ignorance and uncertainty muslim societies stand to lose the most but this is not destiny in the cultivation of a new type of literacy futures literacy there resides a hope muslim societies in postnormal times offers an alternative where we can rescue and decolonise our futures sardar serra and jordan take an open and plural approach to the future revealing the true potentials that lie before us through detailed analysis of contemporary trends the road to destruction is revealed through identifying and exploring emerging issues agency through options can allow for positive change and in the extrapolation of these ideas into scenarios the authors pave the way for us to navigate our own preferred futures their study challenges the reader to think about the future in a new way redefining the monolithic future as three tomorrows extended present familiar futures and unthought futures along the way ever watchful for black swans black elephants and the illustrious black jellyfish that could disrupt the path ahead the authors pull no punches in critically evaluating the possibilities and nightmares that could potentially befall muslim societies through a display of creativity and imagination this book looks beyond the conventional to illuminate impacts in the context of the complex interconnected world we find ourselves in this informative and enlightening text will push readers to see beyond popular yet native notions of present and future in the exposition of the reader s ignorance and uncertainty they will begin to look for the unthought and take agency in recolonising and navigating their preferred tomorrow

Art and Society in Africa 1980 considering that orkney is a group of relatively small islands lying off the northeast coast of the scottish mainland its wealth of neolithic archaeology is truly extraordinary an assortment of houses chambered cairns stone circles standing stones and passage graves provides an unusually comprehensive range of archaeological and architectural contexts yet in the early 1990s there was a noticeable imbalance between 4th and 3rd millennium cal bc evidence with house structures and villages being well represented in the latter but minimally in the former as elsewhere in the british isles the archaeological visibility of the 4th millennium cal bc in orkney tends to be dominated by the monumental presence of chambered cairns or tombs in the 1970s claude lévi strauss conceived of a form of social organization based upon the house sociétés à maisons in order to provide a classification for social groups that appeared not to conform to established anthropological kinship structures in this approach the anchor point is the house understood as a conceptual resource that is a consequence of a strategy of constructing and legitimizing identities under ever shifting social conditions drawing on the results of an extensive program of fieldwork in the bay of firth mainland orkney the text explores the idea that the physical appearance of the house is a potent resource for materializing the dichotomous alliance and descent principles apparent in the archaeological evidence for the early and later neolithic of orkney it argues that some of the insights made by lévi strauss in his basic formulation of sociétés à maisons are extremely relevant to interpreting the archaeological evidence and providing the parameters for a social narrative of the material changes occurring in orkney between the 4th and 2nd millennia cal bc the major excavations undertaken during the cuween widford landscape project provided an unprecedented depth and variety of evidence for neolithic occupation bridging the gap between domestic and ceremonial architecture and form exploring the transition from wood to stone and relationships between the living and the dead and the role of material culture the results are described and discussed in detail here enabling tracing of the development and fragmentation of sociétés à maisons over a 1500 year period of northern isles prehistory

Community and Society in Roman Italy 2009-09-02 why is it so difficult to develop and sustain liberal democracy the best recent work on this subject comes from a remarkable pair of scholars daron acemoglu and james a robinson in their latest book the narrow corridor they have answered this question with great insight fareed zakaria the washington post from the authors of the international bestseller why nations fail a crucial new big picture framework that answers the question of how liberty flourishes in some states but falls to authoritarianism or anarchy in others and explains how it can continue to thrive despite new threats in why nations fail daron acemoglu and james a robinson argued that countries rise and fall based not on culture geography or chance but on the power of their institutions in their new book they build a new theory about liberty and how to achieve it drawing a wealth of evidence from both current affairs and disparate threads of world history liberty is hardly the natural order of things in most places and at most times the strong have dominated the weak and human freedom has been quashed by force or by customs and norms either states have been too weak to protect individuals from these threats or states have been too strong for people to protect themselves from despotism liberty emerges only when a delicate and precarious balance is struck between state and society there is a western myth that political liberty is a durable construct arrived at by a process of enlightenment this static view is a fantasy the authors argue in reality the corridor to liberty is narrow and stays open only via a fundamental and incessant struggle between state and society the authors look to the american civil rights movement europe s early and recent history the zapotec civilization circa 500 bce and lagos s efforts to uproot corruption and institute government accountability to illustrate what it takes to get and stay in the corridor but they also examine chinese imperial history colonialism in the pacific india s caste system saudi arabia s suffocating cage of norms and the paper leviathan of many latin american and african nations to show how countries can drift away from it and explain the feedback loops that make liberty harder to achieve today we are in the midst of a time of wrenching destabilization we need liberty more than ever and yet the corridor to liberty is becoming narrower and more treacherous the danger on the horizon is not just the loss of our political freedom however grim that is in itself it is also the disintegration of the prosperity and safety that critically depend on liberty the opposite of the corridor of liberty is the road to ruin

Reference Guide to Christian Missionary Societies in China 1971 in industrialized cultures what we do to earn a living is usually divorced from what we do the rest of the time this contrasts with non market cultures where work is an intimate part of life people of such cultures perceive a unity between hunting and raising a family between making pots and training children between the building of houses and the practice of religion often there is no separate word for work because work is such an all encompassing activity work in non market and transitional societies is an overview of the organization of work in diverse societies the division of labor the notions of time that affect work and working and the kinds of adaptations people make when transplanted from one society to another the groundbreaking study encompasses pre industrial and non market societies as well as cultures in the process of change and modernization this double focus provides an unusual and stimulating perspective for both anthropology and the social sciences this book features a broad theoretical introduction delineating the major issues and aspects of investigation in this field it then presents twenty essays that show how work is carried on by women and men in varied societies and cultures the authors provide guidelines for understanding the different value systems and discuss why each approach to work is appropriate in its specific societal structure
